- Novavax is a COVID-19 vaccine that has been in use in Europe since January and is now approved in the U.S.
- Novavax is approved in the U.S. only for adults who have NOT already completed a primary series of COVID-19 vaccine (2 doses of Pfizer or Moderna, or 1 dose of J&J.) Novavax may not be used as a booster dose at this time.
- Novavax uses a more traditional protein-based technology and is a good choice for those who cannot or prefer not to use mRNA vaccines.
- Protein-based vaccines like this one often cause fewer side effects in some people.
- Novavax has been shown to protect against moderate to severe COVID-19 safely and well.
