March 25, 2020 PRESS RELEASE FROM Dr. LOCKE

“One of the most important strategies Public Health has to control infectious disease outbreaks is to quickly detect new cases of an infection, place them in isolation to prevent further spread, and then notify all exposed contacts before they become infectious and place them in quarantine. The delays in availability and restricted access to COVID-19 testing have seriously compromised our ability to maximize the impact of isolation and quarantine. Making the best of a very bad situation, all persons being tested for COVID-19 have been advised to self-isolate until they receive their test results. Close contacts of people awaiting test results have been advised they should restrict their activities as much as possible until it can be determined whether they have been exposed to the coronavirus.” To read the complete press release log on to:
